United States Tax Return FAQ

These are the 10 questions and answers we most commonly address upon delivery of a US tax return.

Note that we have included links to videos prepared for Amazonians that have been password protected (password: vTax!).

If you still have any questions after reviewing this FAQ and related videos, please do not hesitate to reach out to us through your myMobility Help Center.

1. Why do I have a balance due on my tax return?

These are the most common reasons why you may owe a balance with your tax return:

1. Having personal income such as interest, dividends, capital gains and net rental income which generally has no tax withholdings at source.
2. Having supplemental compensation like bonus, RSU income or tax-assisted benefits which generally has a 22% federal tax withholding rate while you may be in a higher tax bracket.
3. Not setting up Form W-4 for payroll tax withholdings correctly, e.g., if your spouse also works one of the Forms W-4 should be completed utilizing the "Multiple Jobs or Spouse Works" section.

For more information on balances owed, watch Residual US Taxes.

2. Is my relocation package tax assisted?

Generally, your relocation package will be reported as income and will be tax-assisted by Amazon. This means that Amazon will likely gross up this income at a 22% federal rate through payroll.

For more information on relocation packages:

Cross Border Relocation Package

Global Lump Sum Package

3. How does Amazon allocate my RSUs between countries and what is the withholding rate?

In general, RSUs are allocated on a pro rata basis over the dates you were based in each country during the grant to vest period. Amazon follows the withholding rules in each country in determining the withholding rate and for the US this generally means:

1. Withholding a federal rate of 22% on the US-sourced portion only; or
2. Withholding a federal rate of 22% on the full vest if you were not subject to non-US withholding

For more information on US RSUs, watch US Taxation on RSUs.

Filing / Payment Process

4. How do I apply for an ITIN?

You should have received a separate communication detailing the application process:

1. Make an appointment at a designated IRS Taxpayer Assistance Center and bring your tax return and identification documents; or
2. Mail your Form W-7, tax return, proof of identity and original foreign status documents to the IRS; or
3. Apply for an ITIN in-person using the services of a third-party IRS-authorized Certifying Acceptance Agent.

United States Tax Return FAQ

For more information on applying for an ITIN, watch Individual Tax Identification Number \(US ITIN\)

5. How do I file my tax return and make tax payments?

Please review the detailed instructions included in the tax return delivery email and tax return package since there may be slight differences for each jurisdiction involved.

Most tax returns are eligible for e-file, but sometimes complex positions taken on the tax return can disqualify the tax return from the e-filing system. If e-filing is not applicable, please follow the instructions to file your tax return by mail. If e-filing is applicable, you can e-sign the consent form directly on the myMobility website or app. Sometimes e-sign identity verification is not possible due to limited public records available to verify against. In this case, you must sign and upload the e-filing consent form included in the tax return package for each jurisdiction being e-filed.

Tax payments can generally be made online directly on the website of the tax authority. For example, federal tax payments can be made to the IRS using Direct Pay.

For more information on filing, paying and what comes next, watch What's Next: Post Filing of Your Tax Return.

Presentation of Provided Data on Final Tax Return

6. How is my Amazon compensation determined and reported?

Your compensation reporting is complex and forms a major part of why we have been engaged to prepare your tax filing correctly. We receive your compensation data from Amazon from 3 major sources: home and host payroll, RSU grant/vest equity details and Graebel relocation expenses.

Much of the income required to be reported on your US tax return would already have been determined by Amazon and reported in your Form W-2. However, it is sometimes necessary for us to interpret your non-US payroll and determine how much of that income should also be reported, for example, if it is earned during your US residency period.

We also use the Graebel and equity reports to reconcile and ensure those expenses have been reported correctly in payroll already and to ensure we report only the correct taxable amount on your US tax return.

7. What are the differences between single, married filing separately (MFS) and married filing jointly (MFJ) statuses?

With limited exceptions unmarried individuals must file as single. For most married individuals, MFJ is a better filing status due to preferential tax rates, deductions and credits and the ability to file one tax filing for both spouses.

For foreign nationals, however, tax residency in arrival and departure years can restrict your filing status to MFS since MFJ is reserved for full year residents. It is sometimes possible to make an election to be a full year resident and utilize MFJ filing status, but this must be balanced against the requirement to include worldwide income for the full year instead of limiting taxation to just US-sourced income.

8. How does the foreign tax credit work to avoid double taxation?

Since US tax residents are subject to taxation on worldwide income, the foreign tax credit helps avoid double taxation by allowing you to claim a credit for primarily non-US income taxes. The amount of credit you can claim is limited by only applying to foreign-sourced income, for example, salary earned on workdays outside of the US, portions of RSUs earned in the grant to vest period outside of the US, etc.

For this reason, even though you may see the full amount of salary and RSU vest reported as income on your US tax return, it does not mean you are double-taxed if all or part is offset by the foreign tax credit (refer to Form 1116 and related schedules). For more information on the foreign tax credit, watch US Foreign Tax Credit

United States Tax Return FAQ

9. How are my non-US mutual funds reported and taxed?

Non-US mutual funds may require reporting under the Passive Foreign Investment Company (PFIC) regime on Form 8621. A separate Form 8621 is required for each investment.

Under the default regime, the sale of a PFIC can trigger an "excess distribution" calculation which involves a 3-year lookback period for tax and interest which essentially approximates US federal income tax that would have been payable if the foreign corporation had distributed all of its income every year.

Alternatively, a mark-to-market election can be made which avoids the excess distribution calculation and instead tax is calculated on the income and growth in value each year even if no sale or distribution occurs.

10. What kind of credits and deductions can I qualify for?

For employees, most deductions are already taken through payroll such as contributions to medical insurance or 401(k) plans which can reduce your taxable compensation and should already be reflected in your Form W-2.

Our tax questionnaire was designed to be thorough and guide you through providing information on any deductions and credits you could qualify for. Deductions and credits may be subject to various thresholds and income limits in order to qualify so you may not see these providing a tax benefit even if you detailed them in the questionnaire submission process:

- Itemized deductions include state taxes, charitable contributions and home mortgage interest, but only to the extent they exceed the standard deduction for your filing status
- Student loan interest
- Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contribution
- Capital Losses (in excess of capital gains)
- Child tax credit / credit for other dependent
- Foreign tax credit
- Residential energy efficient property credit
- Education credit
- Electric vehicle credit
